

Hello everyone, I'm Mustafa. I am a graduate student in Ankara University Biomedical Engineering. I am one of the students who were entitled to attend the International Summer School on Fluidic MEMS at Jade University and received a scholarship.

I can say that Summer School was great in many ways, and I feel lucky in that regard. If we examine these aspects in turn, the first one is that I could not imagine gaining a lot of knowledge in a field that I have no idea but I am eager to learn (FMEMS) in a short period of three weeks. In addition to the theoretical lessons, laboratory studies and experiments carried out every day showed that education was not only about theory, but laboratory work was a serious dimension of this work. The laboratories where training and experiments are conducted during the summer school are highly equipped and the teachers in the laboratory were extremely helpful and friendly. I would like to thank Helmut and Ines again from here 😊.

Second perspective, of course, was meeting dozens of people from different countries. Being able to conversation with friends from all over the world adds a lot of value to people. It was an incredible experience to get to know the cultures and daily lives of our friends from various countries such as Brazil, Portugal, Germany, Egypt, Gabon, Mexico, Belgium and to tell them about our own country. It was wonderful to be with these beautiful people, each of whom is extremely warm and friendly, for a period of 3 weeks. I hope our paths will cross again one day.

Of course, before I forgot, although we receive education in a foreign language at the undergraduate and graduate levels in our country, the positive effects of practicing English throughout education is another issue that should be mentioned.

Another perspective is the activities organized during the training. We took part in an event almost every day and these events have been a great tool for the whole team to bond even more.

The excursions and activities carried out were extremely nice. Finally, thanks and love to all the sponsors who supported us so that we could participate in the training. For this wonderful experience, with love to all our professors from different countries, especially Iris Wilters and Guilherme, who supported us.... Who knows, maybe we will meet again one day... <3
